THE "NEW" NEXUS: WATER AND CLIMATE
CHARTING A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

Dr. David Feldman, Professor and Department Chair of Policy Design and Political Science at the University of California, Irvine is internationally regarded for his work in water resource management and policy, global climate change policy, and ethics and environmental decision-making. His current research is directed at trans-boundary conflicts over water resource management; the role of civil society groups in environmental decision-making; the geopolitics of energy and resource policy; and public perceptions of environmental risk.
