

Making Good Food Work:

What We Still Need to Know and Do.

October 10, 2013

7:00pm—8:00pm

Room 118

Classroom Building

Dr. Mary Hendrickson is a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri—Columbia. She directs the Food Circles Networking Project, a pioneering extension program which links farmers and consumers to build local food systems. Her scholarship on the consolidation of US agriculture and food industry has been highly influential at both the academic and public policy work on global and local food issues.

This event is sponsored by the Department of Community & Leadership Development in the College of Agriculture, Food, and Environment, the Department of Sociology in the College of Arts & Sciences, the Tracy Farmer Institute of Sustainability and Environment, the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station., and the USDA International Science Education program.
